GENERAL SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

Manager Phillips and his team of ball players left the city for New York last evening with very light hearts. Horace, particularly, was cheerful and very hopeful of great success. During yesterday he received a dispatch from Rowe and White stating that they will be in New York to-day, ready

"This is very satisfactory news to me," said the manager, "as it means more things than one. It means that the two players have been playing hard every day on the quiet, keeping themselves in condition. I know that they would not commence playing at once if they were not in condition to do so. I think we'll put a strong team in against New York to-morrow. Here is our nine: Galvin, Miller, Hanlon, Sunday, Rowe, White, Dunian, Carroll and Kuehne left field. Now that aggregation looks well on paper; doesn't it? Our two new players may not be thoroughly efficient in team work for a few days, but two or three games will put them all right. I fully expect

Pitcher Conway will have a talk with President Nimick to-day relative to resuming work, Conway is in condition to pitch, but he is not inclined to run any risk by going into the box too soon. As already stated in this paper he is not receiving any pay from the club, and, therefore, need only report when he likes. It is un-derstood that his talk with Mr. Nimick to-day will relate to some guarantee against no pay if Conway should join the team in the East and should his arm break down again. If nothing satisfactory in that way can be agreed upon he may remain at home until the club returns. Harry Staley's friends are also anxious that his good work be rewarded by a return of the fine that the club imposed on him at Indian

Undoubtedly, the team leaves home in a stronger condition than ever a home club left the city before. On paper the team looks as outry, and it may be that strong as any other in actual contest. Certainly the pitching power is great, and if Conway joins the team this week the prospects of vicseem unreasonable to expect that the seem unreasonable to expect that the team will win 8 of the 15 games to be played while away from home. If this is done it will be very satisfactory work away from the home grounds. If Rowe and White do not strengthen the batting force almost everybody interested in the club will be disappointed. Nothing definite has been arranged relative to the disposal of Smith. It is conjectured, however, that if Pittsburg does not intend to retain him he will still remain in the League. However, when the club returns it is likely, if all the players are in condition, that two or baid to be Wonders. "I was at Highlawn Farm, Lee, Mass., the other day, and saw Horace W. Brown." remarked an old turfite to me last evening. "Everybody knows Horace. He is the man that piloted Belle Hamlin, 2:13%, to her mark, as well as many other star performers of the turf. But say, I honestly think he has the best string of youngsters this year he ever had. Brown and his son are training 22, ranging in age from 2-year-olds up to 9. Highlawn is one of the prettiest located farms in the world, and since the death of Elizur Smith it has been under the management of J. G. Davis, a splendid gentleman by the way, too. Brown is splendid gentleman by the way, too. Brown is quite sweet on the bay horse Nominee 4180, age 4, by Stranger 3630, out of Sapphire, by Jay Gould: second dam Lucy, record 2:18%, made over the Buffalo track August 9, 1872. Nominee combines the blood of Goldsmith Maild, through Stranger, her son, and Lucy, 2:18%, and says if nothing happens to him he will have a record some day faster than either. He can show a 2:20 clip now. Alfonso, bay colt, aged 3, by Baron Wilkes, 2:18, out of Alma Mater (dam of Alcantera, 2:23; Alcyone, 2:27, and Arbiter, 2:39), is very promising. He has only been hitched to a sulky three times this year, and can show a 2:40 clip. A full brother, called Alexander, foaled 1887, shows great year, and can show a 2:40 clip. A full brother, called Alexander, foaled 1887, shows great speed, and the time is not later than 1890 when both will enter the 2:30 list and add to the fame of Alma Mater, already one of the greatest brood mares of the time. Montezuma 2076 can beat 2:30 any day. Berkshire Belle, age 3, by Alexone 732, out of Belle Brasfield, record 2:20, made over the Buffalo track August 5, 1879; and Little Turner, by Alexone, out of Nettie (dam of Jerome Turner, 2:15%), as well as Lenox. are all very likely candidates for 2:30 honors as 3-year-olds.

of Jerome Turner, 2:105(), as well as Lenox. are all very likely candidates for 2:30 honors as 3-year-olds.

"A full brother to Jerome Turner, 2:155(, is likely to be a sensational pacer. Considering the amount of training, Brown says he is the fastest horse he ever sat behind. Brown has five 3-year-olds and three 2-year-olds, and expects to make a good showing with them next fall at the New England breeders races.

"One of the young horses that is destined to stop the ticker in 2:20 before the frost is on the pumpkin is Suburban, owned by Mr. Spries, of Glens Falls. He was sired by Albantra, out of Flaxey (dam of Blondine, 2:248(), by Kentucky Clay 194. Brown is delighted with the promising young trotters, and says he will put more youngsters in the magic list this year than ever before in a single season. His many friends throughout the country will be delighted to learn of his success, and trust the time is not far distant when they will see his white silk coat and cap leading the way on many occasions around the great circuit tracks again, as in the happy days gone by."—Horseman.

Singular Incident Relating to the Joint Owners of Bell Boy.

The equal owners of the $51,000 trotting stal-lion Bell Boy, Judson L Clark, of Elmira, N. Y., and George H. Hopper, of Unionville, O., have never met or seen each other, and the way their partnership was brought about is as follows, says a cotemporary: Shortly before the sale of Bell Boy at Lexington, in February, Mr. Clark announced to a friend that he was anxious to purchase Bell Boy, provided he could get a partner to take an equal interest in the horse, and asked this friend if he could secure him such a partner. A few days afterward his friend was standing in the rotunda of a New York hotel and overheard George H. Hopper, the wealthy Standard oil man, making a remark to a companion similar to what Mr. Clark had said, that he would like to find some one to go into partnership with him in the purchase of Bell Boy.

Mr. Clark's friend stepped over to Hopper and told him that Mr. Clark also desired a partner for the same purpose, and a short talk between the gentlemen resulted in Mr. Hopper opening a correspondence with Mr. Clark. By letter they arranged that Mr. Clark should go to Lexington and make the purchase at any price, and Mr. Hopper agreed to put up half the money. God knows that life until recently was as sweet to me as to anyone, but the strain of late has been too much for me. I the strain of late has been too much for me. I cannot go into the presence of our Holy Father with my mind so stained. I must ease my mind. Why are you not with me so I can talk to you? You have been a true friend. I never had more to say to you than I have now. What a fearful tale I could tell, but dare not put on paper all I know. Punishment will never be meted out to me on earth for the part I took in it. You cannot imagine how I have been tried since I left you. May God forgive it all. When I left you I went straight to Chicago, and you can guess from reading the papers as to C. being missing how all came out in ridding us of that devilish traitor and spy on our actions. God only knows why such a fearful change has come over me since that night. I left the city at once and hurried here to finish the part that had been given me. My brain is on fire. Oh, I have waited so long for the trunk to come: each day's delay has increased my frenzy to the highest pitch and now I know that the plans, for all they were so carefully laid, must have miscarried and I dread the consequences. I cannot stand it any more: I am going to end it all.

Ben Butler's Annexation Speech

Strikes an Answering Echo.

BETTER FEELING ALL AROUND. The French Element is Looking Toward the United States.

SOME VERY SIGNIFICANT REMARKS ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE.

TORONTO, July 7 .- General Butler's speech on the annexation of Canada to the United States to the students of Colby University, Maine, last week, has been much talked of here and has elicited much favorable comment from representative Canadians. It has done much and will do more to conciliate Canadians whose ire was aroused by what is termed here bombastic speeches of those who threatened Canada with non-intercourse and other inconvenient measures for the purpose, it was thought, of inspiring the people of the Dominion with a desire for annexation.

Canadians are naturally and pardonably proud of their country, and the fondest hope they cherish is one of independence and the building up of a great nation like that of the republicans to the south of them. But the fact can no longer be concealed that, with the more enlightened, the impression that Canada's

He is awaiting them, and will on onthing until he has received instructions. He understood that the fight wouldn't take place in Louisiana.

The Ourcome in Doubt.

What will be the outcome of all this no one can say, because no one knows what are the instructions to the militia, whether to stop the fight, to see no disturbance occurs, or only to escort the excursion to the Mississippi line and see that the battle does not come off in Louisiana. It is thought that the latter is the plan most likely to be pursued, but peech on the annexation of Canada to the

The strongest is the race question. Until a few days ago the only spirit aroused by the anti-Jesuit agitation of the Protestants of Canada in their concepts were spirit of call defense.

Now the Frotestants of Canada in their opponents was a spirit of self-defense.

Now the French-Canadian Roman Catholics of Canada have assumed different tactics. They have thrown off the garb of the oppressed and are openly aggressive. Hard-y a day passes that some taunt or insult is not offered by the French-Canadians to the

"Why should we renounce our language, our laws and our customs, which are better than theirs (the English)? We already have theirs (the English)? We already have all the elements that constitute a nation. The French Canadian national feeling is very lively in our whole population, and it would be next to impossible to uproot it. She intends changing her dress five times a day on fine days, and two or three times on wet ones, when she cannot go out. vigogne. The skirt is gathered into the bodice, the collar and cuffs of which are in vigogne. The skirt is gathered into the bodice, the collar and cuffs of which are in old silver. This may surprise you, but it is one of fashion's latest freaks. The metal is of the thinnest, and is laid over the velvet or cloth of the collar and cuff beneath. The buttons match the old silver. The traveling cloak is made of the same material as the dress, and has some handsome passementerie upon it. It fastens with a long silk cord.

Her gowns for one day are as follows: Morning gown of embroidered batiste, lined with silk, and trimmed with a profusion of lace and ribbon. Very short skirt in accordion pleats from the waist. This is to be changed for the early promenade for a foulard with plain pleated skirt. The bodice is made with a Figaro vest over a batiste chemisette. With this goes a Lamballe straw hat, matching the color of the dress, and trimmed with bows of shaded velvet. Next comes a mid-day toilet in surah. The bodice, otherwise plain, has a silver collar and cuffs. Over this is passed the straight, round skirt, and the junction of the two is hidden by a band of black velvet, or a belt to match the collar and cuffs. From 2 o'clock to 5 is to be worn a more elaborate dress of white muslin embroidered over its entire surface, mounted and cuffs. morning, and will remain on duty until

The Military Prenarations in Louisiana are on a smaller scale. But two companies, the Louisiana Field Artil-lery and the Louisiana Bifles were called out. The first made a meager showing at the armory, most of the men being reported out of town, whereas as it is known that a majority of them want to go to the fight themselves. Forty of the Louisiana Rifles reported. Both companies are ordered to be on duty for service in the field and to report at 12:30

P. M. at the depot of the Queen and Crescent Railroad, Gov-ernor Nicholls this morning issued a proclamation, which was served on the rail-

What will be the outcome of all this no one can say, because no one knows what are the instructions to the militia, whether to stop the fight, to see no disturbance occurs, or only to escort the excursion to the Mississippi line and see that the battle does not come off in Louisiana. It is thought that the latter is the plan most likely to be pursued, but the great question is whether the milities. is the plan most likely to be pursued, but the great question is whether the militia train will ever reach the grounds. The impression prevails that it will be sidetracked or that the puglists or those who go to see the fight will slip away from the troops in some way and have the affair over before the latter can come up with them. The necessity for secrecy has induced the managers of the mill to refuse to allow any telegraphic communication with the ring. There is to be no wire there, and the correspondents will not be allowed to send any specials from any way stations on the route. They will have to come back to New Orleans to reach a telegraph station, when there will be a nice

The Scene of the Battle.

It became known to-night that the place finally selected for the fight was Richburg, or Rich's Mills, in Marion county, Miss., 103 miles from New Orleans, in the midst of a dense pine forest. This fact leaked out, and the Sheriff of that county and the commandant of the Mississippi troops at Nicholson telegraphed to Governor Lowry for instructions, asking whether they were authorized to tear up the track to prevent the passage of the prize fight train. He answered, telling them to take any steps that were necessary to of the prize fight train. He answered, telling them to take any steps that were necessary to prevent the fight occurring in Mississippi; not to tear up the track, but to place such obstructions on it as to prevent the passage of trains, if necessary, and to notify the railroad authorities of what had been done. This is the plight those in New Orleans find themselves at midnight. The fighters are safe in Mississippi, beyond the troops, and are now at Richburg, where the battle will take place. The troops, by constant marching, cannot hope to reach Richburg before noon to-morrow.

fore noon to-morrow. Caught in a Trap.

Should the authorities interpret the Governor's instructions to obstruct the track as meaning the stoppage of the trains containing the thousands on the way to the fight, there will be a great many disappointed men and the battle may be decided without any eyewitnesses at the regular time, but those who have secured tickets to the mill are hopeful of getting through to Richburg without any interference, claiming that, as are not principals, they are not amenable to the law.

It is raining heavily up the road at Hattiesburg, and even lower down. The uncertainty of a battle was never greater than now, and how Sullivan and Kilrain can escape arrest is something that will take considerable figuring to get around. It looks as though they were caught like rats

SCENES AT MIDNIGHT.

Excited Men on Their Way to the Depot Fill the Streets-How Kilrain Hopes to Win-$100 to $1,000 That Sullivan Wine in One Round.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. NEW ORLEANS, July 7 .- The streets are filled with excited men at 11 o'clock tonight, on their way to the depot. There are umors without number as to the attitude of the authorities, and it is asserted by men in almost the same breath that the fight will come off and that it will not take place, but everything points to the theory that the men will begin hostilities at daybreak.

A gentleman who is intimate with Charles Mitchell and Kilrain says that neither of them believe that Sullivan is in as good condition as his friends represent. Mitchell said: "It is not possible for a man to drink and abuse his stomach as Sullivan has done, and then recover perfectly. He may appear to be all right, but not until he is hit there hard and good a dozen times will its true condition be apparent. His stomach has always been his weak point, and Jake will take plenty of time and pay a good deal of attention to it. Where Sullivan once broke his arm, he may injure it again, and in that event where would ngain, and in that event where would he be? Jake has never injured his stomach by dissipation, and he has never had an arm broken; all his limbs has never had an arm broken; all his limbs are perfect. Sullivan will try and rush Jake all about. If he lands, well and good; but if Jake evades him he will soon tire himself out, so that he will not be able to stand on his legs. If he does, what a picnic he will be for Kilrain!"

John T. Norris, the Springfield, O., detective, who escorted Kilrain safely through Mississippi, received $100 for that service. He is to get $500 more if he lands Kilrain after the battle. He has a warrant for Jake's arrest an a charge of prize fighting in Massachusetts. Jake will waive requisition and John T. will take him into custody. When he gets him north of the Ohio sition and John T. will take him into custody. When he gets him north of the Ohio river his task is over, and Jake goes free. The requisition will go no further.

Marsh Redon, the well-known sporting man, of this city, made a bet of $100 to $1,000, at 11 o'clock to-night, that Sullivan will win the fight in one round.

There are some very slick pickpockets and thieves in the crowd that is thronging the streets, and many of the spectators of the the streets, and many of the spectators of the fight will come back considerable poorer than they were going over Lake Pontchar-train at 1 o'clock.

THE GOVERNORS AS SPORTS.

J. Hale Sypher Willing to Bet That All Three Will See the Fight. (SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.)

WASHINGTON, July 7 .- Hon. J. Hale Sypher, late a Congressman from Louisiana, says of the probability of interference with the Sullivan-Kilrain scrapping match: "I would be willing to wager a new suit of clothes or a basket of champagne, that the Governors of Louisiana, Mississippi and Governors of Louislana, Mississippi and Texas will be eye witnesses of the Sullivan-Kilrain fight, and they will not go in an official capacity, but as spectators, and put up for their tickets like any other American citizens who desire to see the sport. The ordering out of the militia is gammon. Not a man would raise his gun to prevent the fight, and if the battleground should be pitched at a distance from the militia encampment every man of them would stack arms and hurry across the fields to the scene of battle.

The ceremony of ordination was performed by His Grace, Archbishop Rvan, and was witnessed Archbishop Rvan, and was witnessed by many men and women eminent in religious and social life. The high social position occupied by the Sher-man family, with its branches of Blaines, Ewings, Gillespies and others whose names have had world-wide reputations, served to make the ceremony one particularly notable in the annals of religious history. Long before the hour, appointed for the ceremonies crowds of curiosity seekers had assembled around the Arch Episcopal residence seeking admission to the chapel, but all were refused excepting those who had been provided with cards of admission. At 9:15 the doors of the chapel were thrown open and the relatives, friends and invited guests took the places which had previously been assigned them. There was comparatively little confusion or noise, the majority of those in attendance evidently understanding the services, while the few who were there through curiosity preserved the were there through curiosity preserved the proprieties and were slow in manifesting as tonishment at any of the impressive forms with which the ceremony was conducted. At 9:30 the solemn ceremony of ordination was performed. The invention of omnibuses is due to the Philosopher, Pascal, who, in February, 1667, obtained a "privilege"—what we should call a patent—for public carriages to travel through certain streets of Paris. They held eight passengers, who paid f sous each, and were very successful, although an act of the Parliament of Paris torbade them being used by lackeys, soldiers and other humble folks. Pascal died in 1667, and his useful invention did not long survive him. The omnibus re-appeared in London about the beginning of this century, and was adopted in several French provincial towns before Paris ac-

Why Yale Wins,

The athletic men of Yale sat down to oanquet at 2 o'clock last Saturday morning at the New Haven House. The banquet lasted until nearly 7 o'clock. Not a solitary person was under the influence of liquor. The wine and cigar bill for 40 men was less than $55, and not a story was told that the lady friends of those present might not have heard. The men spent their time in sing-ing, cheering and exchanging views for the further development of Yale athletics.

Thirteen blocks are wiped out. No hotel, restaurant or business house is left. As soon as the fire subsided measures were taken to feed the homeless. The fire came on so suddenly that there was no time to save the stocks of merchandise. One hundred extra policemen have been detailed to guard the little that was saved.
